The postal clerk is a genius who musnecessarily understand the name and locality of every artery, vein, tissue and fiber in the entire postal system. When he takes up a letter addressed to a remote office, he must at a glance understand the various lines of travel over which it is to pass, and it is his duty to send it by the most expeditious route. The postal clerk is required to commit to memory the names of all the offices contained in the various states included in his division. The average number of offices so committed is about 8,000 for the entire sys tem. Perhaps the most difficult duty known to the postal clerk is that of distributing the mails for the larger cities. It clerk is required to distribute all New York mail by stations, streets, numbers and boxes. Fifth Avenue hotel mail is 145 Washington street would be placed in a package for "Carrier No. 15." The Times building mail is carried by "No. 35;" The Tribune by "No. 36." The postal clerk must know the various mail routes as familiarly as he does the faces of his best friends. His car, with its tier over tier of pigeon holes, and its ranks of yawning mail bags, is to him no labyrinth of mysteries. His eyes are in his tingers, and the skillful mu touch is not more accurate than the aim of this wizard of the mail car. The department rules are exacting, and if an occasional error results from the hurried manner in which the mail is thrown, in course of distribution, it is sure to be detected by the next clerk into whose hands the stray piece of mail falls, and a report ber of errors made in handling this vast quantity of matter was only 1,260,443. The number of pieces handled for each error committed were 4,228, thus making the percentage of correct distribution All employes are required to attime of each is devoted to studying the mail schemes of the various states attach ng to the division in which he is em doyed - John M.
